Weather Key Points

Regional Operations Center

Western Region

Saturday, October 29

- Dry weather will mostly prevail across most of the state through early next week
 - Light precipitation will be possible Saturday morning across northwestern California. However, no precipitation impacts are expected.
 - Very dry conditions and breezy winds are expected this weekend in the mountain and interior areas across southern California, which will lead to continued elevated fire weather conditions
- Another storm system will likely bring widespread precipitation, mountain snow, gusty winds, and much colder temperatures to most of the state
 - Timing: Precipitation chances will increase Monday night through Tuesday across northern California, before spreading into central and southern California Wednesday. Best precipitation chances will then be confined to mainly southern California Thursday, with lingering precipitation across northern California possible.
 - Snow: Heavy mountain snow is expected above ~5,550-6,500' Tuesday through Wednesday in Inland regions, especially in the Sierras. Potential for winter impacts dropping to 3500-5500' in some locations Tuesday Night and into Wednesday.
 - Some uncertainties remain with the timing and strength of the system, however there is a chance this could be a moderate impact event.
- Potential for another storm system next weekend into early next week

COVID-19 SUMMARY

Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19)

On 03/02/20 at 0700 hours, the Cal OES State Operations Center (SOC) activated at Level 1 in support of the California Department of Public Health (CDPH) Medical Health Coordination Center's (MHCC) statewide response to COVID-19. Cal OES will continue to provide resource coordination for the COVID-19 event, as well as situation status reporting and advance planning across multiple areas.

SMARTER Plan

On 10/17/22, Governor Newsom unveiled the "California Smarter Plan Updates October 2022". The plan emphasizes continued readiness, awareness and flexibility and helps ensure California can maintain its focus on communities that continue to be disproportionately impacted and stay prepared to swiftly and effectively respond to emerging COVID-19 variants and changing conditions. Governor Newsom is set to lift the State of Emergency in early 2023, and this update provides information on California's progress to date and how we move forward.
